

City's face covering ordinance extended to June 12, 2020

The city's face covering ordinance, which was set to expire on Friday, May 29 at 11:59 p.m., has been extended to Friday, June 12 at 11:59 p.m. Another change to the ordinance concerns fines. It's $25 for the first offense, $100 for the second offense and $250 for the third offense. Both changes happened during a special called Birmingham City Council meeting on May 29.

The ordinance was first put in place on May 1, requiring people to cover their nose and mouth while in public.
